Summer feeding program begins June 16

The Harrison County School District is again participating in the Summer Food Service Program, which provides meals to all children without charge. Meals will be available at River Road Park from June 16 to Aug. 6 between 12 and 12:30 p.m.

Library construction underway

Construction on an addition and renovations to the Cynthiana-Harrison County Public Library is underway. There will be some changes to exiting the parking lot. Patrons will still be able to go in from Pleasant Street. However, they will have to exit via Kehoe Alley between the library and St. Edward parking lot. Access to the library will only be front the front entrance facing Main Street.

LV Singers to join celebration of Star Spangled Banner anniversary

The Licking Valley Singers will be taking part in the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the national anthem. At 4 p.m. near the flag pole at Flat Run Veterans' Park, LV Singers will be raising their voices along with others across America. The Singers are asking that others in the community join them in this commemoration. A Boy Scout troop will be raising the flag at 3:45 p.m. Everyone is invited and families may remain afterward to picnic and celebrate with the singers.

Cedarbrook sewer causes stink

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

Representatives from several state organizations worked to channel the anger of Cedarbrook land owners upset over the possible abandonment of the neighborhood sewer plant at the Harrison County Extension Office Tuesday evening. Harrison County Judge Executive Alex Barnett arranged for the public meeting after Cedarbrook residents discovered that the

R.A. Williams Construction Company had filed a request to abandon and cease sewer plant operations with the Kentucky Division of Water (DOW) and the Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC). According to residents, and confirmed by Andrew Melnykovich, PSC Public Information Officer, the R.A. Williams Construction Company, doing business as the Cedarbrook Waster Water Treatment Plant, has been managing the package sewer system as a private business endeavor for about 38 years. During that time, R.A. Williams had been collecting monthly fees from residents and requesting sewer rate changes with the PSC. It is also apparent that Ron Osborne, President of the Bex Construction Company, has been trying to transfer managerial duties of the wastewater plant from R.A. Williams to another owner for almost two decades, according to Melnykovich. According to the Bex Construction Company website, R.A. Williams became a wholly owned subsidiary of Bex in 2010. In 1997, R.A. Williams filed papers to transfer Cedarbrook management duties to another group of investors, but the request was withdrawn when the deal apparently fell through, Melnykovich said.

Lonaker gets 15-year sentence for gun thefts

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

After having previously entered a guilty plea to multiple charges, James Lonaker was sentenced Tuesday to 15 years in prison for his part in firearms heists. Lonaker was the second of the two to be sentenced for his part in a Jan. 21 chase that involved Harrison County's two law enforcement agencies. Johnathan Hawkins was sentenced to 13 years in prison in May. Lonaker's guilty plea was for 22 counts of theft by unlawful taking (firearms), three counts of first degree burglary, one count of second degree burglary, two counts of theft by unlawful taking (others) more than $500 but less than $10,000, 18 counts of receiving stolen property (firearm) and one count of theft by unlawful taking under $500. 18th Judicial Circuit Judge Jay Delaney denied Lonaker's request for probation due to the seriousness of the crimes. He is also required to make restitution and have

Grand jury issues three indictments Tuesday

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

The Harrison County grand jury, in its final session before the new jury pool is selected, issued three indictments. Melvin L. Crawford Jr., 48, was named in two separate indictments. Crawford is accused of two counts of first degree sexual abuse with the victim being less than 12 years old.

The charges stem from incidents that allegedly occurred on Jan. 10 and 11, 2012. The indictment states that Crawford subjected the child to sexual contact when she was incapable of providing consent due to her age. His bond is $10,000 on those charges. He is also charged with second degree escape for having fled from a Harrison County jailer on Feb. 1, 2013. In this case, Crawford's bond is also $10,000. The third indictment is against Jacob Dale, 28, who faces a first offense charge for failure to comply with sex offender registration. The grand jury alleges that Dale failed to register his address change between March 24 and April 15, 2014, after having previously been convicted of a sex crime. Dale's bond was set at $5,000. The grand jury reported that during its quarter, which began in March, 27 indictments were issued. Five cases from Tuesday's session were passed to the new grand jury.

HCHS graduation is Friday at Athletic Complex

Two hundred and five graduates will walk across the stage Friday night as a culmination of 13 years of hard work. The program, which will be held at the Harrison County Athletic Complex behind the Middle School on Education drive, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Selected class members will serve as speakers for the Class of 2014.

Sequence of Events

At 6 p.m., the north gate will be open to the general public (those with tickets). At 6:30 p.m., graduates will take composite picture in the auditorium. At 7:15 p.m., graduates and faculty will proceed to the south gate for the processional.

At 7:30 p.m., the procession starts. After recessional, students will pick up their diplomas at the high school. (No one other than grads will be permitted in the school/hallway)

Information for General Public from school administration

The general public is encouraged to dress accordingly. This is a graduation ceremony to recognize the accomplishments of the class of 2014. Please refrain from wearing any casual attire. The goal is to bring some pomp and formality back to the outdoor graduation ceremony. Only the gate at the north end of the complex will be used for entrance and exit of the general public. All other gates will be locked until the ceremony begins. No persons will be allowed in with food or drink. Bottled water will be permitted and sold at the complex. Coolers are not permitted. No smoking or tobacco products will be permitted on school property. No persons will be allowed on the field. No persons will be allowed on the field for picture taking. No picture taking will be permitted by general public except from the stands. A complimentary photo will be taken of each graduate receiving his/her diploma. These will be ready for pick up approximately two weeks after graduation at the high school. Handicap seating will be in the first row of every set of bleachers. The general public will be seated in the stadium. No one will be allowed on the field or track except for the graduates, faculty, band, and the guests on stage. Only guests with tickets will be permitted into the Harrison County Athletic Complex. The ceremony is not open to the general public. Graduates have been allotted 13 tickets each to distribute to those whom they wish to invite. The 13 tickets will be coded – gold tickets will be coded for admission to the auditorium in case of inclement weather. See GRADUATION, page 3

Campbellsville University honors 166 Kentucky teachers for teaching excellence

By Joan C. McKinney, and Mikayla Smith

Campbellsville University honored 166 teachers from 58 school districts throughout Kentucky by receiving the Campbellsville University Excellence in Teaching Award Saturday, May 10 at the Ransdell Chapel on the CU campus.

Bill Goodman, host of "Kentucky Tonight" and "One to One" on Kentucky Educational Television, spoke to the approximate 400 teachers and their guests by discussing "What is a teacher for?"

Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of Campbellsville University, told the teachers he was proud of them and that education is the "most powerful force on the planet."

"Teaching is the first of all disciplines," he said. "Thank you for the outstanding job you do for us."

Dr. Frank Cheatham,

senior vice president for academic affairs, Dr. Chuck Hamilton, associate professor of education and chair of the undergraduate program at CU, and Hedgepath presented the certificates to the teachers before a luncheon.

Campbellsville University began the Excellence in Teaching Awards Program in 1987 with assistance from Earl Aaron and the Ward, Cundiff and Aaron Memorial Fund. The purpose of the program is to recognize the quality teaching and learning taking place in the school systems throughout Kentucky.

Through the awards program, CU presents certificates to teachers in each grade level [preschool/elementary (P-five), middle grades (six to eight) and high school (nine to 12)] as selected by their school districts.

The Excellence in Teaching Award recipients include the following with their superintendent listed first:

Harrison County School System- Andy Dotson, superintendent; Laura Shirley Jones, Westside Elementary; Jean Jones, Harrison County Middle School; Josh Valentine, Harrison County High School.

Laura Jones is a fifth grade social studies teacher at Westside Elementary where she has taught since 2004. She graduated from Harrison County High School in 1981.

In 1993 she earned her bachelor's in elementary education from Eastern Kentucky University. She received her master's in elementary education from Georgetown College in 2001. Her Rank I in education administration was earned at Eastern.

She is the wife of Greg Jones and the mother of Jill and Gregory Jones. Her parents are Julius Shirley and the late Jill Mitchell Shirley of Cynthiana, Ky.

Jean Jones is a 1986 graduate of Lynn Camp High School who teaches seventh and eighth grade science at Harrison County Middle School.

She graduated from Union College with her bachelor's degree in 1990. Then in 1997 she earned her master's from Georgetown College.

She is the wife of Randy Jones and the mother of Jake and Kenzie Jones. Her parents are Larry and Joan Jones of Corbin, Ky.

Valentine is a U.S. history and AP U.S. government teacher at Harrison County High School. He is a 2004 graduate of Lynn Camp High School.

He is a 2008 graduate of Eastern Kentucky University with his bachelor's. Continuing his education, he attended Union College to earn his master's in 2012.

Cady Wurtz

Wurtz

Cady Wurtz graduated from Kentucky Christian University with a bachelor's degree in Bible and Ministry with youth and family emphasis. She was honored on the Dean's List for Spring 2014. Wurtz is the child of Jeff and Tammy Wurtz of Cynthiana.

Hope earned Morehead B.S. degree in May

HOPE

Sylvia Elizabeth Hope graduated from Morehead State University on May 10 with a bachelor of science degree in psychology. Hope is a Harrison County native and the granddaughter of Fay Hope Mastin, Lewis J. Mastin, and John and Judy Conley. Hope graduated high school in 2009 as valedictorian at the Kentucky School for the Blind in Louisville.

Three Harrison High School students win KHI scholarships

HOUNCHELL, WATKINS, McCAULEY

Three Harrison County students have been named as recipients of the Kentucky Highway Industries scholarships.

Receiving scholarships are: Holly Brook Houchell, daughter of Angela Houchell, who is employed by Mountain Enterprises of Lexington. Holly is pursuing a computer information systems degree at Morehead State University.

Brandon Watkins, son of Diana Watkins, who is employed by Judy Construction Co. in Cynthiana. Brandon is pursuing an engineering degree at the University of Kentucky.

Cory McCauley is the son of Glenn McCauley, who is employed by Hinkle Contracting LLC. Cory is pursuing a degree in broadcasting at Western Kentucky University.

Intern joins Democrat news team for summer Lonaker

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

With little more than a semester left before finishing a journalism degree, University of Kentucky senior Kayla Pickrell, 21, will spend her summer as an intern for the Cynthiana Democrat.

Pickrell will complete her degree in December 2014 and hopes to base her professional career in print and internet journalism.

In order to achieve her goals, she transferred to the University of Kentucky from Appalachian State University, tucked into the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Boone, North Carolina. She looks back fondly on her beginning years at Appalachian State, mainly because of the beauty of the location.

"It was not an unusual site to see students studying in the branches of the trees on campus," Pickrell said. However when she decided upon journalism for her degree, she transferred to the University of Kentucky, which is considered to have one of the top journalism programs in the country.

During her undergraduate work at UK, she served a year as news editor of the award-winning Kentucky Kernel campus newspaper and managed the Midway Messenger, an on-line news blog covering developments on the Bluegrass Pipeline that would have cut through that portion of Woodford County.

Prior to her summer

Kayla Pickrell

term with the Cynthiana Democrat, Pickrell also served out an internship with the Memphis Commercial Appeal, a publication of the Scripps News Service.

Her interests in the news is centered on print and on-line publications. "I'm much better at writing than I am speaking in front of the camera," Pickrell said.

Pickrell was born in Rome, New York, but as a Navy brat, there is not any one place that she calls home.

While growing up, she has lived in numerous places, among them Memphis, Tennessee; Jacksonville, Florida; and Monterey California. Monterey, incidentally, was one of her favorite places growing up.

"I'd love to have stayed there longer," she said.

Her father, Brandon Pickrell, retired after 20 years of service. He was deployed overseas twice while Kayla was growing up.

Pickrell is the oldest of five siblings. She has three brothers and two sisters. Next in line of age is her sister who just graduated high school and will be soon entering her first year of college.

Despite the last name of Pickrell, she is the first of her family to live in Kentucky. She has an apartment in Lexington and plans to make the Bluegrass her home for the foreseeable future.

"At the very least until I finish my degree," she said. "After that, I'm not certain what will happen."

In the meantime, she will be spending about 10 weeks taking pictures and writing news stories for Cynthiana and Harrison County.

Her first day on the job, she got lost trying to find the Cynthiana Democrat office. Besides that small bit of confusion, she already feels very welcome in the community.

no contact with the victims or their property.

Included in the 15-year sentence is one year for second degree criminal possession of a forged instrument.

The two men were seen on Jan. 21 at the CSX railroad bridge at A. Keller attempting to break open two safes. As deputies made their way to A. Keller, Lonaker and Hawkins fled the scene on KY 36 headed towards Cynthiana. The chase continued through Cynthiana to Wornall Lane and across U.S. 27 South to Rice Road, which is where they were taken into custody.

The chase included Det. Paul Olin, Deputy Robert Peak, Deputy Dean Hutchison, Ptl. Nathan Linville, Det. Alan Judy and Sgt. Wilbur Gross.

Graduation

Only those gold tickets are good for admission to the auditorium. The high school class rooms will be for overflow only to those with white tickets for live viewing only if the ceremony is held in the auditorium.

The middle school class rooms will be overflow only to those with gray tickets for live viewing only if the ceremony is held in the auditorium.

Quite simply, in order to attend the ceremony, whether it is at the Athletic Complex or in the auditorium, guests must have a ticket.

No one will be allowed on the field from the time they enter the north gate. All guests will be asked to remain in the bleacher area behind the fence.

Small children will need to be under the supervision of an adult at all times.

No Frisbees or footballs will be allowed inside.

Handicapped parking will be in front of the stadium and the lot adjacent to the art room at the Middle School. These spaces will be marked. Hanging tags must be visible.

Please refrain from bringing lawn chairs and blankets. These items will not be allowed inside. Also, refrain from preserving seats for guests who have not arrived. All general public will be seated in the stadium.

Once graduates pick up their diplomas at the high school following the ceremony, they are encouraged to meet parents at Ingles Stadium (old football field) as a gathering place. Only graduates and school faculty will be permitted in the high school.

Alternative Plan

Auditorium and school use – will be used only if the ceremony is moved to the auditorium.

The appropriate ticket must be presented to enter the auditorium, the high school or the middle school for graduation.

Gold – auditorium; white – high school overflow; gray – middle school

Auditorium – gold ticket holders:

Only guests with gold tickets will be admitted into the auditorium to view the graduation ceremony.

Auditorium/gold ticket guests will use the auditorium foyer to enter the building.

Handicapped parking for gold ticket holders will be in the lot between the greenhouse and high school and the new parking lots behind the greenhouse and auditorium (old tennis courts).

Gold ticket handicapped guests in wheelchairs will be accommodated in the auditorium and may enter the building through the back door gym entrance or the back door near the auditorium.

All doors used for entrance to the high school will be marked according to the ticket color. Gold ticket holders will enter through doors marked 'Gold Ticket Admission Only.'

Anyone in a wheelchair needing to access the auditorium, using the back gym door, will be escorted through the school.

All guests must be seated – no one should be standing in the auditorium during the ceremony. All guests need to remain seated for the duration of the ceremony.

Graduates will be assigned to rooms in the front hall, downstairs, so this area and the library hallway will be off limits to everyone except school personnel and security.

Once the ceremony concludes and graduates have returned to their assigned rooms, guests may then meet their graduate in the auditorium foyer, auditorium or Ingles Stadium (weather permitting).

High School Overflow (classrooms)

– White ticket holders:

Only guests with white tickets will be admitted into the high school overflow (classrooms) to view the graduation ceremony on closed circuit TV.

White ticket guests need to enter the building using the back gym door or the new agriculture/band entrance (closest to the bus garage).

Handicapped parking will be in the lot between the greenhouse and high school and the new parking lots behind the greenhouse and auditorium (old tennis courts).

White ticket handicapped guests, and those in wheelchairs with white tickets, may enter the building through the back door gym entrance or the new agriculture/band room doors (those close to the agriculture shop). White ticket handicapped guests will be escorted to the agriculture classrooms.

Guests who have white tickets will be escorted to classrooms throughout the building, but will not have access to the auditorium.

All guests must remain in the classroom until graduates are dismissed and return to their assigned rooms after the ceremony.

Graduates will be assigned to rooms in the front hall, downstairs, so this area and the library hallway will be off limits to everyone except school personnel and security.

Middle School – Gray tickets

Gray tickets holders will view the ceremony on closed circuit TV at the middle school.

Those guests will need to park in the back, enter through the back doors to the right side of the gym.

Guests will be seated in the cafeteria and then in the classroom.

D-DAY: A 70th anniversary celebration ★ A Pure Miracle ★

Editor's Note: In honor of the 70th anniversary of D-Day, we present this re-print of an article from the great wartime reporter, Ernie Pyle, on the day after the Normandy Beach invasion. In doing so, we honor the memory of the American and European soldiers involved in this unforgettable struggle to secure victory for the allies during World War II.

Readers can enjoy two other articles from Ernie Pyle on our website at Cynthianademocrat.com.

By Ernie Pyle
NORMANDY BEACHHEAD,
June 12, 1944

Due to a last-minute alteration in the arrangements, I didn't arrive on the beachhead until the morning after D-day, after our first wave of assault troops had hit the shore.

By the time we got here the beaches had been taken and the fighting had moved a couple of miles inland. All that remained on the beach was some sniping and artillery fire, and the occasional startling blast of a mine geysering brown sand into the air. That plus a gigantic and pitiful litter of wreckage along miles of shoreline.

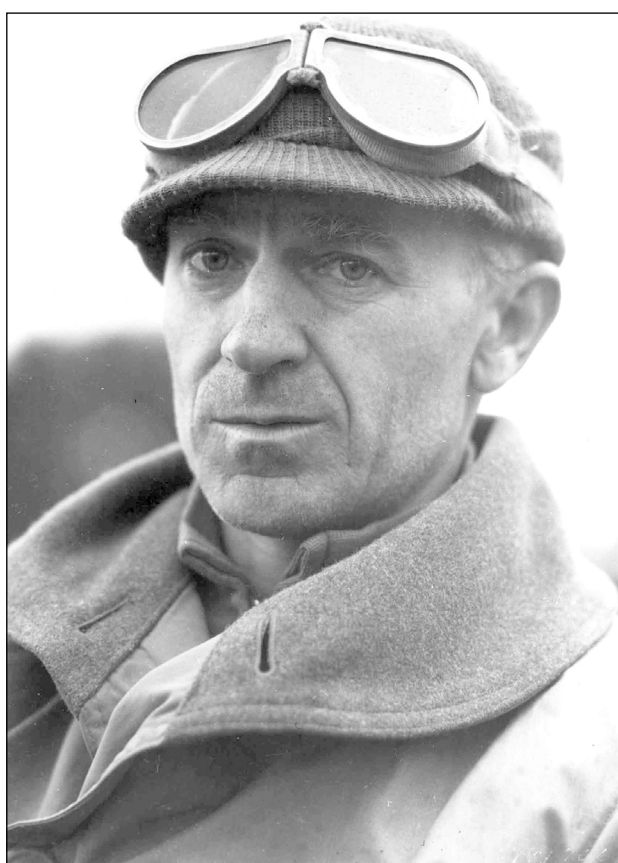

Submerged tanks and overturned boats and burned trucks and shell-shattered jeeps and sad little personal belongings were strewn all over these bitter sands. That plus the bodies of soldiers lying in rows covered with blankets, the toes of their shoes sticking up in a line as though on drill. And other bodies, uncollected, still sprawling grotesquely in the sand or half hidden by the high grass beyond the beach.

That plus an intense, grim determination of work-weary men to get this chaotic beach organized and get all the vital supplies and the reinforcements moving more rapidly over it from the stacked-up ships standing in droves out to sea.

Now that it is over it seems to me a pure miracle that we ever took the beach at all. For some of our units it was easy, but in this special sector where I am now our troops faced such odds that our getting ashore was like my whipping Joe Louis down to a pulp.

In this column I want to tell you what the opening of the second front in this one sector entailed, so that you can know and appreciate and forever be humbly grateful to those both dead and alive who did it for you.

Ashore, facing us, were more enemy troops than we had in our assault waves. The advantages were all theirs, the disadvantages all ours. The Germans were dug into positions that they had been working on for months, although these were not yet all complete. A one-hundred-foot bluff a couple of hundred yards back from the beach had great concrete gun emplacements built right into the hilltop. These opened to the sides instead of to the front, thus making it very hard for naval fire from the sea to reach them. They could shoot parallel with the beach and cover every foot of it for miles with artillery fire.

Then they had hidden machine-gun nests on the forward slopes, with crossfire taking in every inch of the beach. These nests were connected by networks of trenches, so that the German gunners could move about without exposing themselves.

Throughout the length of the beach, running zigzag a couple of hundred yards back from the shoreline, was an immense V-shaped ditch fifteen feet deep. Nothing could cross it, not even men on foot, until fills had been made. And in other places at the far end of the beach, where the ground is flatter, they had great concrete walls. These were blasted by our naval gunfire or by explosives set by hand after we got ashore.

Our only exits from the beach were several swales or valleys, each about one hundred yards wide. The Germans made the most of these funnel-like traps, sowing them with buried mines. They contained, also, barbed-wire entanglements with mines attached, hidden ditches, and machine guns firing from the slopes.

This is what was on the shore. But our men had to go through a maze nearly as deadly as this before they even got ashore. Underwater obstacles were terrific. The Germans had whole fields of evil devices under the water to catch our boats. Even now, several days after the landing, we have cleared only channels through them and cannot yet approach the whole length of the beach with our ships. Even now some ship or boat hits one of these mines every day and is knocked out of commission.

The Germans had masses of those great six-pronged spiders, made of railroad iron and standing shoulder-high, just beneath the surface of the water for our landing craft to run into. They also had huge logs buried in the sand, pointing upward and outward, their tops just below the water. Attached to these logs were mines.

In addition to these obstacles they had floating mines offshore, land mines buried in the sand of the beach, and more mines in checkerboard rows in the tall grass beyond the sand. And the enemy had four men on shore for every three men we had approaching the shore.

The Ernie Pyle World War II Museum

The Ernie Pyle World War II Museum features the famous journalist's birthplace and a museum dedicated to Pyle's life and writings as a war correspondent. It is owned by the Friends of Ernie Pyle, who are dedicated to preserving and expanding the legacy of the writer whose columns linked the soldiers on the front line to worried families on the home front. To preserve Ernie Pyle's memory is to preserve the sacrifices made by what has been dubbed "The Greatest Generation."

About Ernie Pyle

The son of a tenant farming parents in west-central Indiana, Ernie Pyle became history's greatest war correspondent. When Pyle was killed by a Japanese machine gun bullet on the tiny Pacific island of Ie Shima in 1945, his columns were being delivered to more than 14 million homes, according to his New York Times obituary.

During the war, Pyle wrote about the hardships and bravery of the common soldier, not grand strategy. His description of the G.I.'s life was more important to families on the home front than battlefront tactics of Gens. Dwight Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, George Patton or Omar Bradley.

Prior to the United States' entry into World War II, Pyle traveled to England and wrote about the Nazi's continual bombing of London. His columns helped move the mood of America from isolationism to sympathy for the stubborn refusal of Great Britain to succumb to the will of Adolf Hitler.

The Pulitzer Prize winning journalist's legacy rests in his words and the impact they had on Americans before and during a war that threatened to take the world behind a curtain of fascism. His columns open a window to the hardships endured by the common U.S. soldier during World War II and serve today to honor what has been called "The Greatest Generation."

And yet we got on.

Beach landings are planned to a schedule that is set far ahead of time. They all have to be timed, in order for everything to mesh and for the following waves of troops to be standing off the beach and ready to land at the right moment.

As the landings are planned, some elements of the assault force are to break through quickly, push on inland, and attack the most obvious enemy strong points. It is usually the plan for units to be inland, attacking gun positions from behind, within a matter of minutes after the first men hit the beach.

I have always been amazed at the speed called for in these plans. You'll have schedules calling for engineers to land at H-hour plus two minutes, and service troops at H-hour plus thirty minutes, and even for press censors to land at H-hour plus seventy-five minutes. But in the attack on this special portion of the beach where I am – the worst we had, incidentally – the schedule didn't hold.

Our men simply could not get past the beach. They were pinned down right on the water's edge by an inhuman wall of fire from the bluff. Our first waves were on that beach for hours, instead of a few minutes, before they could begin working inland.

You can still see the foxholes they dug at the very edge of the water, in the sand and the small, jumbled rocks that form parts of the beach.

Medical corpsmen attended the wounded as best they could. Men were killed as they stepped out of landing craft. An officer whom I knew got a bullet through the head just as the door of his landing craft was let down. Some men were drowned.

The first crack in the beach defenses was finally accomplished by terrific and wonderful naval gunfire, which knocked out the big emplacements. They tell epic stories of destroyers that ran right up into shallow water and had it out point-blank with the big guns in those concrete emplacements ashore.

When the heavy fire stopped, our men were organized by their officers and pushed on inland, circling machine-gun nests and taking them from the rear.

As one officer said, the only way to take a beach is to face it and keep going. It is costly at first, but it's the only way. If the men are pinned down on the beach, dug in and out of action, they might as well not be there at all. They hold up the waves behind them, and nothing is being gained.

Our men were pinned down for a while, but finally they stood up and went through, and so we took that beach and accomplished our landing. We did it with every advantage on the enemy's side and every disadvantage on ours. In the light of a couple of days of retrospection, we sit and talk and call it a miracle that our men ever got on at all or were able to stay on.

Before long it will be permitted to name the units that did it. Then you will know to whom this glory should go. They suffered casualties. And yet if you take the entire beachhead assault, including other units that had a much easier time, our total casualties in driving this wedge into the continent of Europe were remarkably low – only a fraction, in fact, of what our commanders had been prepared to accept.

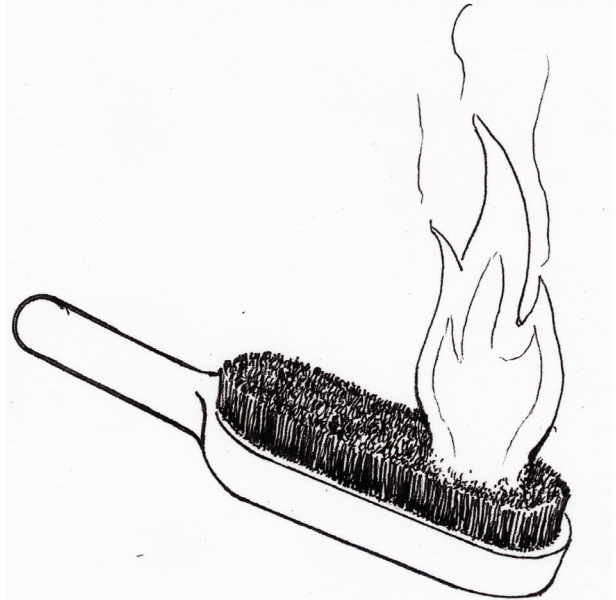

And these units that were so battered and went through such hell are still, right at this moment, pushing on inland without rest, their spirits high, their egotism in victory almost reaching the smart-alecky stage.

Their tails are up. "We've done it again," they say. They figure that the rest of the army isn't needed at all. Which proves that, while their judgment in this regard is bad, they certainly have the spirit that wins battles and eventually wars.

Animal shelter needs our support

To the editor:

I visited the Flora Shropshire Animal Shelter on Tuesday for the first time. I arrived there at 8:30 a.m. and was greeted by Allen Fryman. Mr Fryman was very courteous and informative about the shelter. He said that the shelter stays full a lot of the time and has an 86 percent adoption rate. That is awesome!

At the front gate are cages for people to leave unwanted pets after hours. I can remember when many people would just leave them on county roads to find themselves a home or die. Some of those ended up on our porch.

Mr. Fryman told me about the cat facility at the shelter that was built in the memory of Sally McKemie. Her parents, Frank and Jenny McKemie were neighbors of ours. They saved many animals from being euthanized.

Sally left this earth way too soon, but I am sure that she would be pleased to know about the facility. Sally and her family's legacy will live on forever.

The shelter is a rescue for animals and humans alike.

We, as a community, need to support this worthy cause and the wonderful work that they do. Also the adoption fees in the month of June are lowered to $50.

150th anniversary of Cynthiana's second battle will bring many activities to area

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The rebels are coming! The rebels are coming!

According to an informant from Robinson's Kentucky Brigade, the 150th anniversary of the second Battle of Cynthiana will begin at noon on Saturday, June 14, with a confederate raid on downtown Cynthiana!

Gail Parker, the informant, and a member of the planning committee for the 2014 Battle of Cynthiana reenactments, said the weekend schedule will feature several extra events to celebrate this milestone in Harrison County's history. These added events will enhance the annual observance of the Battle of Cynthiana - an ongoing tradition since the 1980s.

All of the reenactment events are being presented free of charge, Parker said. Everyone is invited to either be a spectator or are welcome to participate in most of the events.

Friday

Throughout Friday afternoon, reenactors will construct the civil war encampments on a section of the Elk's Farm on Oddville Road. The camping site will be as authentic to the time period as possible, Parker said.

"The public is invited to visit the camp and watch the tents being set up in rows, as they would have been in a soldier encampment," she added.

Though there is no rule about where the reenactors camp, those fighting for the Union or Confederacy tend to cluster together, she said.

At 8 p.m., Pike Street will be closed for a dance exhibition in downtown Cynthiana. The Civil War reenactors will present a demonstration of the music and dances that were popular during that time period.

Saturday

The major events surrounding the Battle of Cynthiana get underway Saturday, June 14, at noon. To commemorate the 150th anniversary of the second Battle of Cynthiana, Civil War reenactors will stage a "Raid on Town Square" at the old jailhouse in downtown Cynthiana.

"We have re-created the 'Raid on Town Square' before, but it has been a few years since we last did it," Parker said.

Since the second battle started in Cynthiana at the John Hunt Morgan Bridge, which was then a covered bridge, it is appropriate to commence the reenactment there, she said.

Following the "Raid on Town Square," the reenactors will return to the Elk's Farm. An antebellum era Ladies Tea will happen at 1:30 p.m. at the shelter house on the grounds.

The first of two battle reenactments at the Elk's Farm will commence at 2:30, Parker said.

Years ago, the first reenactment featured just about two dozen soldiers. The event has grown a lot since.

These days the Battle of Cynthiana involves more than half a dozen historic military reenactment groups from the region as well as from neighboring states, Parker said.

No one has ever counted the number of soldiers, but Parker estimates that well over 100 people actively participate in the battle reenactments. The armaments include cannon fire, music, as well as traditional forms of military combat from the era.

Near the encampment, vendors will be selling all kinds of hand-made goods.

The battle will end in time for the reenactors to join with Cynthiana's Licking Valley Singers at 3:30 p.m. for the bicentennial celebration of the National Anthem of the United States.

At 8 p.m., at the Elk's Farm shelter house, historian and former Cynthiana resident Bill Penn will present an historical account of both Battles of Cynthiana, 1862 and 1864. Penn has published an account of both battles in "Rattling Spurs and Broad-Brimmed Hats: The Civil War in Harrison County and Cynthiana."

A Civil War period ball begins at 9 p.m. that evening.

The public is welcome to join the ball. People don't have to dress up. They can come as they are and can learn the dances that were popular among people of the day.

"The dances are easy to learn and they are so fun to do," Parker said.

Sunday

At 11 a.m. on Sunday morning, battle reenactor and Baptist minister Chadwick Noel will officiate a period church service at the Elk's Farm. Spectators will find this observance of 19th century worship stirring, Parker said.

The last battle reenactment of the weekend will happen at 2 p.m.

Following the reenactment, the Robinson Kentucky Brigade, formerly the Kentucky Cavalry/Orphan Brigade, will honor the memory of its former commander, the late Col. R. Roy Robinson, who passed away last November.

"Ronnie Robinson was a very influential figure among us. I think he may have participated in every Cynthiana

The 150th anniversary of the second Battle of Cynthiana, to be held June 13, 14 and 15, will also feature a memorial to Col. R. Roy Robinson, a beloved leader and reenactor, who passed away last fall. reenactment since the beginning," Parker said.

The public is invited to share in this celebration of an important event on Cynthiana's history.

Sadler to spend summer with Extension Service as intern

By KAYLA PICKRELL, Intern

Caleb Sadler joined the University of Kentucky Harrison County Cooperative Extension as a 12-week intern for Summer 2014.

Sadler is an agriculture economics senior at the University of Kentucky with a business minor. He is on track to graduate in December.

The Cooperative Extension works through the College of Agriculture with local farmers to help fix problems in their fields and greenhouses.

"I like getting to know the farmers and the community," he said.

Sadler follows Gary Carter, the agriculture

and natural resources agent, and develops a plan to fix the problems brought to them. Sadler said he has been working with farmers on pythium in greenhouses with tobacco. Pythium is a water mold that feed on organic matter.

"Gary is an outstanding person to follow," he said.

Sadler is on week four and already feels more at ease in the responsibilities of an extension agent.

"I am a lot more comfortable and the internship has helped me become more confident," he said.

Sadler lives in Nicholas County where he was raised. His family runs a 350-acre farm in the Moorefield area with registered angus cattle and tobacco.

Sadler learned of the internship through his uncle who is a Bath County extension agent. His girlfriend's parents in Bourbon County are agents in Fayette County. Through the support, he decided to apply. "It runs a little deep," Sadler said.

Sadler has been showing cattle since 2003 and is on the University of Kentucky's Livestock Judging Team. He placed fourth overall in the national contest in Louisville.

Sadler hopes in the next eight weeks of his internship he will get to know more of the problems in the agriculture field and gain the knowledge and experience for a job.

"This internship has really gotten me into the agriculture field," Sadler said. "I didn't know what I wanted to do, and through the internship I realized I would like to do this."

Thank You

The family of Billy Curry wish to thank all of our extended family and friends for their cards, flowers, and other acts of kindness following his recent death. And to those who made donations to the Fire District, they were so appreciated and will help in countless ways.

Special thanks go to our friends at Joe's Place and Biancke's Restaurant for food and for being there for us. A very special thank you to the ladies at St. Edward Church, who provided food and enabled friends and family to gather after the funeral.

We are also grateful to Father Lauer, who delivered a comforting eulogy. And to our friends at Ware Funeral Home, we are so appreciative of your kindness.

Our hearts are still heavy with sadness, but having the support of such great family and friends makes facing each day without him a little easier. Than you all!

Cedarbrook

In 2008, the PSC rejected a second attempt to transfer the plant to Cedarbrook Utilities, LLC, an operation involving a Lawrence Smither from Crestwood, Kentucky.

The PSC denied the transfer request, Menykovych said, because even though Cedarbrook Utilities had technical expertise, the organization lacked the financial capability of making the necessary improvements and upgrades to the sewer plant.

Following that rejection of the transfer, R.A. Williams submitted a PSC request to raise monthly sewer rates per household at Cedarbrook from $23.55 per month to $62, an increase of 163.23 percent.

Everyone speaking at the public meeting agreed that the residents were paying too much.

The situation came to a head in May 2013 when the DOW sent Osborne a Notice of Violation letter outlining a long list of deficiencies at the Cedarbrook plant.

Contending that R.A. Williams was never meant to operate the facility for this long, that it does not have ownership and that it does not have the capital needed to make the estimated $300,000 in improvements to bring the Cedarbrook plant in compliance, Osborne made a formal request to abandon the facility, Melnykovych said.

Cedarbrook residents reported that they were unaware of any of these developments. If it had not been for resident Danny Tolson investigating why he and several residents had not received a May 2014 bill, residents argued that they would still not know about the abandonment.

However, summarizing the PSC's procedures when it comes to an abandonment, Melnykovych explained that a hearing would have been scheduled with the customers following a PSC investigation into Osborne's claims.

"Judge Barnett came in a few steps ahead of us on a public meeting, but considering the circumstances, it's a good thing he did," Melnykovych said.

This is the first time in his 12 years with the PSC that a company has submitted an abandonment request for a sewer plant.

"Our goal in the abandonment process is to try and keep the facility serving its customers. Shutting down a sewer service creates a number of health and environmental issues," Melnykovych said. "To be frank with you all, this is a tough case. But we're trying to help find an answer."

Tolson, Will Mallard, and several other residents at Cedarbrook were beginning to ask what can be done to hold R.A. Williams accountable for the past fees that were collected. Many said very little improvements have been done.

Barnett interrupted the questioning and explained that he intentionally did not invite either R.A. Williams or the DOW to the public meeting.

"We don't need a shouting match. We need solutions," Barnett said. "They're not part of the solution."

To introduce a possible answer, Barnett invited Roger Recktenwald, Director of Research and Planning with the Kentucky Association of Counties, and Gene Thomas, Environmental Director for the WEDCO district health department, to explain how, working with the Harrison County Fiscal Court, Cedarbrook could establish a special sewer district.

Recktenwald and Thomas have extensive experience setting up these districts and pledged themselves to helping Cedarbrook get started.

Creating this district, Recktenwald explained, would make the facility subject to public input.

"Instead of decisions being made about your system in a Lexington office building without your input, these sewer districts are subject to public meeting laws. You sit at the table, review the figures, and set the rates," Recktenwald said.

"And those rates are not subject to PSC regulations," Melnykovych added.

A three-member board of Cedarbrook residents would manage the needs of the plant and collect monthly fees for its upkeep, Thomas said.

The process requires approval from the Harrison County Fiscal Court, Recktenwald said, and the judge-executive would appoint the members of the board.

After that, the fiscal court would have no further involvement in the decision-making, he said.

Cedarbrook wastewater treatment facility is the source of concerns for local residents.

Furthermore, the public sewer district can apply for state and federal grants and low-interest loans that are denied to privately owned utilities.

No county tax money is involved with this type of sewage district, Recktenwald asserted.

Lake Carnico in Nicholas County set up a similar type of sanitation district, Thomas added. He was involved in getting the details of that district underway.

Thomas is also involved in a similar transition with a large trailer park in Scott County.

"It takes time, but it can be done and, if all parties are agreeable, its simple to do and straightforward," he said,

Bob Casher of the Bluegrass Area Development District outlined some of the major grants that may be available to fund a project to upgrade the existing package sewer plant.

There are a vast number of details that still remain to be done. It's a process that will take years instead of months, Thomas said.

First on the agenda, though, is the abandonment procedure, Barnett said.

R.A. Williams has several questions it must answer under oath to the PSC and the Kentucky Attorney General's office about the legitimacy of the claims in its abandonment request.

The answers should be returned to the PSC by June 14, Melnykovych said.

In the meantime, residents were confused about whether they should continue paying their monthly bills. No one would give a direct answer to the question.

However, Barnett advised that failure to pay bills would only add fuel to the company's argument that it cannot sustain proper maintenance of the treatment facility and allow them to wriggle free of any liability associated with their alleged mismanagement of the service.

Motorists should be aware of Amish buggies on highways

By KAYLA PICKRELL, INTERN

There is no room for horsing around when driving near Amish buggies, especially along US 62 East and Shadynook Pike where two Amish families have recently made their homes.

Daniel Miller, a member of the Amish community, lives with his family approximately four miles past Eastside Elementary on US 62 East.

Before entering the area, a large, yellow, diamond-shaped horse and buggy emblem warns drivers to stay cautious.

When traveling to town, Miller said he uses the highway. When visiting the other Amish family on Shadynook Pike, he said they take the back roads to avoid too much traffic.

Residents were concerned for safety while driving on US 62 East because the buggy seemed to be unmarked.

"That road is the catch-up place for when you are running late," David Powers, a retired Cynthiana police officer said. "On the buggy I saw nothing, not even lamps hanging on the side."

Kentucky statute states that motorless slow-moving vehicles, except bicycles, may use "one-inch-wide white or silver reflective tape" as an alternative to the "slow-moving vehicle emblem."

The tape has to be on the rear, sides and front left of the buggy.

Before April 2012, a yellow triangle had to be placed on the back of slow-moving vehicles, but because of religion, the statute was rewritten to allow for Amish communities to use reflective tape instead, said County Attorney Bradley Vaughn. The new statute allows for all other motorless slow-moving vehicles to do the same.

"We do have reflective tape that is required by the law on our vehicle," Miller said.

Powers said he was on his way home from church on US 62 and was the third of four following a buggy. The buggy moved over to allow the first two cars and Powers over but did not notice the fourth vehicle. The buggy moved back onto the road and cut off the car behind him. Powers said the vehicle had to swerve off the right side of the road to avoid crashing into the buggy.

"I don't think the public has any idea," he said. "There is going to be a tragic accident."

Miller said he has had no problems with drivers.

"It's been really good since we moved here, and I'm really surprised," Miller said. "People really take care."

All news must be signed by both parties.

approved by the State Department of Education. One of the provisions of the agreement was that the old school be modernized. A bid submitted would cost about $34,000.

Transportation problems might arise within the Berry School District. Understanding of the State Department of Education's regulations, two facts emerge: Parents in the Berry School district who wish to provide private transportation for their children to the Northside School may do so; and children who are picked up by school buses in the district must attend the Berry School. If the Berry School is discontinued children in the district would be sent to Northside and Westside schools.

Two little hobos found entering Cynthiana. The brothers are newcomers to Winchester and decided to slip away from school during recess. After a chilling train ride and a three-mile walk along a rail bed, they were picked up by Cynthiana firemen when the trainman spotted them and put them off north of A.Keller. The boys were fed, washed up, and clothed before notifying their parents.

Watch for the grand opening of Walter's Sunoco Service.

The new Post Office is taking shape in Berry and must be completed by Nov. 1 under contract.

The First United Methodist Church of Cynthiana held a yard sale in its parking lot Friday afternoon to raise money for building repair. The church's youth program was also raising money to do mission work in Louisville with a Methodist church there.

Year-Round Backyard Safety Tips for Families

(StatePoint) Your backyard is a space where you enjoy quality time with your family all year long. But accidents can happen anywhere -- even in the oasis of your backyard. For parents, taking extra safety precautions out back should be just as important as child-proofing done indoors.

To prep and maintain your yard for outdoor safe play and relaxation, here are several important steps:

- Lawn

Remove tree stumps and level concrete footings to avoid tripping. Lawn debris such as rocks could become projectiles when cutting the grass. So be sure to clear the yard. Additionally, children should never be nearby while you're using motorized equipment. Store potentially dangerous tools, equipment and chemicals completely out of the reach of children, such as in a locked shed or garage.

- Fencing

A yard without a fence is like a house without walls. Fences help protect children from danger, keeping toddlers out of swimming pools, hot tubs, ponds, or away from traffic or strangers. Fences can also improve pet safety, keeping your pets in your yard and other animals out, and can reduce your liability by preventing injuries to uninvited guests on your property.

With that in mind, be sure your fences and gates are functional and free of rust that can render them useless or dangerous.

"Rusty metal gate hardware that no longer functions properly or becomes a threat to children is a top homeowner concern, according to our research," says Jim Paterson, senior vice president of D&D Technologies, which manufactures gate latches and hinges made of ultra-strong engineering polymers.

Eliminate this worry by installing high-quality fencing impervious to seasonal weather, ground settling and other factors that can cause gates to become misaligned over time. Opt for gate hardware that can be easily adjusted to function properly over the long-term. For example, some models of TruClose self-closing tension adjustable hinges are vertically and horizontally adjustable.

Additionally, be sure to install pool barrier access gates with adjustable self-closing hinges like TruClose and self-latching gates where the latches are out of the reach of children, such as the Magnalatch Safety Gate Latch. Both products carry lifetime warranties and are adjustable both vertically and horizontally for easy adjustments.

Homeowners can peruse a bevy of rust-free gate hardware and child safety latches online at www.ddtechglobal.com or in person under the Stanley Hardware brand available through most Lowe's stores.

Carpenter bees breaking down the door

Every year about this time I write about carpenter bees.

We live in a wood house and they love us. And this year, they have really pushed the limit of reasonable bee behavior.

I absolutely do not approve of killing bees, but I will have to make an exception this year.

Most bees are welcome around the farm especially since the nation's bee population is in a bit of a crisis with the suspected cause being the use of pesticides, notably neonicotinoids.

I do not fear bees, I am not allergic and I can happily co-exist ... except that they are taking a toll on my house.

The friendly carpenter bee that we need to get rid of actually bore a hole in our basement door.

I noticed sunlight coming through a small hole that upon further inspection was clearly made by a busy bee. I was astonished.

I long ignored them and now we are paying for it.

We are not using chemicals but rather strategic whacking with the hand and a stomp once the bee is flung to the ground.

We have no other choice. Last year they attacked the garage door frame where approximately 20 bees were removed from the scene of the crime in three weeks.

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

It was stressful on all involved.

This year the numbers seem reduced, but do they really need to drill holes in my doors?

There is an old badminton racket on stand-by to knock any offenders to the ground this time around.

Carpenter bees are essentially harmless. The male, who hovers about, has no stinger.

The female tunnels and lays her eggs; when she does come out, you would have to handle her to be stung.

I've never been stung by one (even hand-whacking them to the ground).

They sort of become acquaintances because they are always there hovering about. I suppose this is why I never took action against them for so many years.

Two years ago, the straw that broke the camel's back was when the downy woodpeckers showed up and gouged out some holes as they worked to get to the bee larvae inside.

It was a double whammy on the garage door frame.

Carpenter bees look like bumble bees, but bumble's nest is in the ground and carpenter bee's nest is in tunnels that they excavate in bare, soft wood (our house is unpainted western cedar.) They are less likely to tunnel into painted or pressure-treated wood.

As I said, I used to ignore them, but they can cause structural damage if they continue to tunnel, year after year, in the same wood.

The adult bee from this spring's eggs will emerge in late summer.

These bees will over winter in the tunnels and emerge next spring and make new tunnels or widen existing tunnels to lay their eggs.

This is where the problem lies. If you feel that too much activity is taking place in structures like decks, treat the new tunnels with a pyrethrin-based insecticide or boric acid inside the entrance hole.

Wait a week and then plug the hole with a dowel rod or wood putty.

Bees are good, however, so if there is no apparent structural damage just embrace your garden dwellers. I have used some decoy tobacco stakes out in active areas for them to lay eggs, but I think this ultimately made my problem worse.

Strong men of HCHS sweep competition

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Friday, May 23, the Harrison County strong man participants from Harrison County High School football, wrestling and basketball teams were involved in the strong man competition held at Western Hills High School.

The results were that the Harrison County 16-person contingent rolled past the field of five other teams' 94 participants by a wide margin winning or sharing the lead in four of the six weight classes.

Harrison County picked up 159 points to second place Western Hills' 96 and third place Collins' 95.

Collins was the winner last year edging past the Thorobreds, but this year the strong men of Harrison County left the field in the proverbial dust.

The rest of the team scoring was Fairdale 45, Grant County 37 and Frankfort High 30.

"We kicked butt to put it mildly," said Coach Rob McCann. "We were dominant in most of the weight classes and really scored better than the final tally indicated."

The format of the strong man competition is that each of the athletes in the six weight classes compete in the four qualifying events to get to the finals.

Only the top five competitors qualify for the finals and only the final participants can score team points.

The four events are the farmer's walk, the log press for reps, the tire flip, and the atlas stone over bar reps.

The tire flip involves a tire weighing between 400 and 625 lbs., depending on weight class, and the atlas stone over the bar stone weighs between 115 and 260 lbs., again according to weight class.

The final event is the atlas stone on to a descending board with the board height from 65 inches to 45 inches as the heavier stones are lifted upon the lowest board height.

McCann is joined in coaching the strong man squad by Adam Tolle and Josh Ashbrook.

The top five in each category scored team points. The top performers from Harrison County were in 150 lb.

class Thomas who finished 6th, 180 lb. class Norfleet who won four of five events to finish first and Holland who was 5th, the 200 lb. class where Mastin won five of five events to finish first and Pulliam was 5th, VanHook was 4th in the 230 lb. class, the 265 lb. class where Sinclair won five of five to finish first and Workman was second and the Super heavy weight where McCall tied for first and Hill was third.

This was the sixth year for the strong man competition. Harrison County competed in 2007-08 and 2008-09 but did not compete in the following two years.

The Thorobreds finished second last year before running away with this year's competition.

Freshman archer is right on target

It's not the pressure of competing for placement in a national archery tournament that gets to 15-year-old Macy Robles, it's the few minutes after.

"I get very nervous after the fact," the Harrison County High School freshman said recently. "I realize just what I've done and what I've accomplished. Then I look around and see how many people there were."

What she has accomplished is no small thing.

At the National Archery in the Schools Program (NASP) National Tournament on May 8, Macy placed fourth among 1,466 high school girls, marking the third consecutive time she had placed in the top five for her division.

"Macy has been able to achieve what most student archers have not, truly staying focused on the target," said Harrison County High School Archery Coach Melissa Shepard.

"Archery tournaments can be very noisy with hundreds of spectators. Macy has proven that she can block out all distractions, which is a must during competition."

After shooting 15 arrows from 10 meters and 15 from 15 meters, Macy scored a total of 293 out of 300 with 23 perfect 10s during the main competition. She tied with two other girls and had to go into a shoot-out to determine third, fourth and fifth place.

In the tie breaker competition, which was in a separate area from the main shoot, there was quite a large crowd.

"A couple of thousand

people are watching three girls shoot against each other," said Macy.

To break the ties, each girl shot five practice arrows and five scoring arrows.

"[It was] very nerve wracking," she said.

But that wasn't the end - Macy earned the fourth place spot, putting her in the top five who competed for scholarships. So she had to shoot another end (the term in archery for a round) - again five practice and five scoring arrows - to compete for the scholarship money.

Macy's shooting was so tight, her own arrow dropped her score. She shot two arrows to virtually the same spot in the 10-point circle. The second arrow ricocheted off the first and landed in the nine-point circle.

"Because she was so tight, it cost her the point," her father Serf said.

As if the tiebreaker end wasn't stressful enough, Macy had a glitch during the scholarship end. One of the fletchings - which stabilize the arrow as it flies - came off and she had to call her dad down from the stands for a replacement.

She stood out in front of the crowd alone while Serf made his way to the floor with the new arrow.

"I had to shoot this one arrow with everybody watching," she said.

"Thousands of people in there and you could hear a pin drop," added Serf. "And they're all waiting."

Macy garnered fourth place again in the scholarship end.

It would seem that Macy was practically born with a bow in her hand, but that's not even close to the case. She only started in archery her sixth grade year - one year before she placed in Nationals.

"I said, 'Oh cool, archery,'" she said when she found out the middle school had a team. "And dad bought me a bow... so I just decided to go for it, go for the team."

Like most athletes learning the fundamentals, Macy started out rough. Then she started putting in the work.

"We started getting a lot of videos, watching a lot of YouTube videos" she said.

"We watched a lot of real, good archers and studied their form," Serf added.

So Macy set to work and improvement came - lots of improvement.

"Lots of practice, lots of videos," she said.

And it paid off - she started placing in competitive shoots.

She went up from there, making waves at several tournaments across the state.

She placed second in 7th grade and third in 8th grade in the middle school girls division at the national level. Her scores were both 293 those times as well. In fact, she tied with the world record for a seventh grader with that 293.

Her performance last year led to the world competition in June 2013, where she placed fourth in the middle school girls division.

She was the overall winner at last year's Bluegrass State Games, where she put a 296 on the board.

"It was her highest score ever," said her mother Krista.

How does she do it? Focus.

During a shoot, Macy said she tries to stay focused on the target, so the other archers and the crowd isn't a distraction to her.

"I don't notice all the people, opponents or anything," she said.

Macy's performance earned her a spot on the All American team, which represents the United States in various competitions. It's essentially the top ten boys and girls archers in the country.

OPINION

first but Taylor was awarded second due to number of misses at the lower heights.

This effort puts Taylor amongst the best pole vaulters ever at good old HCHS and I am truly sorry to have not included him in the previous article.

It is truly ironic that I missed on reporting the pole vault results since that was the one event that my two brothers and I were okay in as young people.

My younger brother, John, was the best of the three of us though when we had our back yard track meets my older brother and I made it difficult for him to beat us.

We were always doing things like knocking the bar off while he was running to stick the pole in the ground or while he was in the air in mid jump. Somehow he managed to overcome the abuse to excel where the two of us were just okay in the event.

We used to hold neighborhood track meets at our house, which could include as many as 10 or 12 kids to four or five including our cousins, who were close to our ages.

Since Tell City was a furniture manufacturing city, we had plenty of saw dust for pits and lots of wood around to build standards for pole vaulting and high jumping.

We used saw horses with long dowel rods across them for hurdles and ran the mile and half mile in the horse pasture much to the dismay of the horses.

We used bricks for the shot put and an improvised spear for the javelin throw.

It was quite an event usually with only one or two fights per meet.

That was actually an improvement over most of our brotherly games.

Basketball always resulted in a variation of solid blocking out to downright fighting. That is the way brothers play with each other or at least that is how the Aldridge boys played.

Christmas time always had a family basketball game, which ended abruptly on most occasions with brother battling brother or maybe a cousin who when we were growing up were like brothers.

But, even with the skirmishes, we all remember the games and track meets with fondness.

It seems to me like a time that families did more together that created great memories. It was a simpler time and one that many of us would like to see again.

Fillies lose region final to Clark County, 5-1

Finish season with 19 wins

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

The Harrison County Fillies could not find their hitting sticks last Wednesday night in Covington as they lost the regional championship game to George Rogers Clark, 5-1.

Harrison County played error-free ball and the pitching did not walk a batter, but the Fillies could only muster five hits in the 10th Region Championship played at Scott High.

GRC hurler Jenna Edwards gave up one earned run as she too did not walk anyone and struck out seven Fillies.

The Lady Cards picked up nine base hits to score their five runs with big doubles from Megan Terrell, Melissa Hall and Sydney Anderson.

George Rogers Clark scored first in the bottom of the second for a 1-0 lead but the Fillies came right back in the top of the third inning to tie the game when Courtney Newsom drove in Sydney Motell for a 1-1 ball game.

The Lady Cards picked up three more runs in the bottom of the third and another in the fifth for the final 5-1 tally.

The Fillies hit the ball squarely but the ball seemed to find a defender and the Lady Cards were solid in the field.

The loss closed out the Harrison County season with a 19-16-1 record while the George Rogers Clark record stands at 29-12 as they go into the state tournament.

The Lady Cards will carry the 10th Region banner into play at Jack Fisher Stadium in Owensboro Thursday at 7 p.m.

They will face the 13th Region representative the Lady Cardinals of South Laurel, who defeated county rival North Laurel 4-1 to gain a spot in Owensboro.

South Laurel's record to date is 31-8. The two teams did not meet in regular season.

Whitaker Baseball Camp is June 9-12

Harrison County High School baseball coach Mac Whitaker has announced the dates for this year's baseball camp. The camp will be held at River Road Park beginning Monday, June 9, and go through Thursday, June 12.

Each day's session will be held from 8:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. with a snack and break time. Campers will be provided instruction from Coach Whitaker, the high school coaching staff and some former players who come back to help in the camp.

The cost of the camp is $70 per camper with forms available at the schools and from Coach Whitaker. Any questions please contact Coach Whitaker at 859-298-9654.

Golf tryouts will be in July

Harrison County golf coach Jason Crisp has announced the dates for both the boys' team tryouts and the girls' golf team sign ups. In both cases an up-to-date physical has to be with the participant at the tryouts or sign up.

The Thorobreds golf team tryouts will be held Thursday, July 17, at 7:45 a.m. at the Cynthiana Country Club. The format will be an 18-hole tryout with no more than a 10-member team selected.

The Fillies golf team sign up will be Friday, July 18, at 7:30 a.m. also at the Cynthiana Country Club.

Remember that each person trying out or signing up must have an up-to-date physical or they will not be allowed to tryout.

Upward Soccer registration to begin June 24

Registration forms are now being accepted for Upward Soccer. Cost is $55 per child.

Evaluations will take place at the Connersville Christian Church field on Tuesday, June 24 and Thursday, June 26 between 6-8 p.m. and Saturday, June 28 between 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Registration forms can be picked up, dropped off or mailed to Connersville Christian Church, 2190 Ky. Hwy. 1842 East.

Career Craze for middle school students June 17-20

Want to learn how to "Develop the Entrepreneurial Mindset"? Career Craze will take place on June 17-20 at the Licking Valley Campus Extension in Harrison Square.

This free event is open to middle school students grades 6 to 8. There is limited seating.

During the week, several local business men and women will speak about their business. Some of the speakers will be Layne Tussey from The Vault, Josh Jenkins from JJ Sweets, Erick Hadley from Aurora Systems, Stephanie Burden from The Flower Depot, Tom Dailey from Dailey's Auto, Steve Ewalt from Ewalt's Jewelry, and Nell Anne Gossett from The Prizing House.

They will talk about how they started their business, how their education was beneficial to them and/or what classes would help them in their business.

For a hands-on experience, students will travel to The Prizing House and take a tour of the college to learn how a business can start and maintain in a small town.

Next, students will work on what they need for a business such as marketing items, keeping records, book keeping, start-up money, etc.

Lennie Kinney, LVC Workforce Solutions coordinator said, "Not only adults can run their own business, we have several examples of youth who have been very successful and profitable developing their ideas and running their own business. This is a great, free opportunity for local youth to learn from those who are already running their own business."

For more information about Career Craze contact Kinney at 859-234-6689 extension 105.

GAME OF THE WEEK

Cardinals fly by Dodgers Saturday at River Road in Little League play

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Casey Sledd and Cameron White went four for four and Ian Boland and Austin Hisle were three for three as the Cardinals defeated the Dodgers, 21-9, in Saturday afternoon Little League play.

The Dodgers, behind the hitting of Anthony and Jacob Vascotto, jumped out to a 3-1 lead after the first inning but the Cardinals scored nine times in the second as they sent 13 batters to the plate in the stanza.

Sledd started the scoring with a one-out double, which the Dodgers played into an inside-the-park home run to make the score 3-2.

Hisle was hit by a pitch and Riley Switzer singled him home to tie the game.

Brodie Hockensmith doubled, Logan Howard walked and Boland drove the three of them home for a 6-3 Cardinal lead and the game was never in doubt afterwards.

The Cardinals scored five more in the third and six in the fourth for their 21-run total.

The Dodgers rallied behind some shoddy

Cardinal fielding for five runs in the bottom of the third to cut the lead to 15-9 but that was all they could muster.

Howard pitched 2 2/3 innings for the Cardinals to get the win with Cameron White coming in relief in the bottom of the third.

Anthony Vascotto picked up two of the four Dodger hits allowed as his squad scored most of their runs from walks and mishandled plays by the Cardinals.

Cardinal pitching gave up 10 walks and two hit batsmen while the fielders made three errors along with some poor judgment that doesn't count as an error.

Paul Robert Copes and Josh Garrison combined to strike out six Cardinals while walking four and hitting one batter. The Dodger fielders committed two errors.

The Cardinals picked up 19 base hits for the game. Sledd led the RBI count with seven and he also scored four times. Hockensmith, Boland and White each scored three times.

Journeys and Destinations

My eldest child graduates from high school Friday night. This fact has me thinking about lots of things. Mostly I am thinking about how her graduation will affect me.

Things like: How much I will miss her when she leaves for college; how much our family dynamics will change when she is gone; and how in the world am I going to be able to look after her and protect her when she is hundreds of miles away.

It also has me thinking about stages of life. Life seems like a journey of stages; childhood, learning how to drive, girlfriends/boyfriends, college or first real job, engagement and wedding, birth of children, diapers, pacifiers, children's car seats, little league, graduations, empty nest, grandkids, retirement.

Most of those were happy things.

There are lots of unhappy stages too. Things like: death of a child, unemployment, divorce, death of a spouse, ill-health.

God made it so that we would live in stages.

What I found myself doing over the years was trying to live for the next stage. I couldn't wait to get past the diaper stage. I thought that once my kids got older, they would sleep through the night and so would I, only to discover that I sleep less now than then because I am awake concerned about them.

I lived to arrive at a different stage. It was like waiting for the weekend or for an annual vacation to actually begin to live.

Some of us imagine the life we will have when the kids grow up, or when we retire.

We get caught up in the day dream of what life might be at a different stage that we miss life now.

What if life is not so much about arriving, but is rather about the journey. How would that change my perspective on the day to day, mundane, routine things of life? Perhaps I would stop thinking that one day, I will really start living. Maybe I would begin to stop hoping that the unpleasant and difficult stuff would hurry up and pass so I could really start living.

I might even begin to appreciate the difficult people and difficult circumstances that are in my life (counting them all joy – James 1:2), realizing they are there in order to grow me in Christlikeness and faithfulness.

Perhaps I would be a bit less frustrated with the apparent lack of progress in myself and in others.

You and I will never arrive at the destination of maturity by any other route than the one God has designed for us.

What difference would it make in our lives if we praised God for the journey and not just the destination?

Church News

BOYERS CHAPEL

A revival will be held June 13-15 at Boyers Chapel with evangelist Kevin Strausbaugh.

Remembering not to forget

On Easter, my husband and I visited a church in Tampa.

Located smack in the middle of the nightclub district of Ybor City, it's an urban church that attracts young people with its industrial warehouse look, its nightclub lighting, loud rock music, free food and emphasis on Jesus rather than the extraneous stuff that doesn't matter.

As my friend Steve would say, the place smelled like Jesus.

And thanks to a pair of complimentary ear plugs offered to us as we walked in, we thoroughly enjoyed the service.

Last Sunday we went back.

On that day, the entire service was about communion. The pastor talked about how Jesus invited his closest friends to a Passover meal, the one we call the Last Supper, the one that took place the night before he died.

At that meal, first Jesus washed his friends' feet. Then he broke the bread and gave a piece to each man present at the table, even the one who would betray him. He told them, "This bread is my body, which is broken for you."

Next, he lifted up the goblet of wine and said, "This is my blood, the new covenant between God and his people" (1 Corinthians 11:24,25 my paraphrase).

Jesus also told them, "Whenever you eat this bread and drink this wine, do it in remembrance of me."

The pastor said that's what communion is for, for remembering Jesus.

He said that as we go about our lives and our busyness, it's not so much that we forget Jesus, but that we forget to remember him.

That statement struck me: We — I — forget to remember Jesus.

"We are prone to spiritual memory loss," the pastor said. "We forget that he still performs miracles; he still gives us hope; he still gives new life. And he asked us to remember him."

A few years ago, I wrote a column about trying to remember Jesus. I had felt the memory of him fading, and I desperately wanted to get it back.

So, I picked up my dusty Bible and flipped through its pages and re-remembered his compassion for the immoral women of his day, how kindly he treated them as he offered them forgiveness and dignity. I re-remembered how he raised the dead only son of a poor widow, brought a little girl back to life, cast demons out of a man and made the blind to see.

I re-remembered his words, "Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest," "Your sins are forgiven" and "Take courage. It is I. Don't be afraid."

GRACE NOTES

This morning, too, still tasting in my memory the bread and the tart grape juice of last Sunday's communion, I purposed to remember Jesus.

As I dressed for work and dried my hair, as I packed my lunch and backed my car out of the garage, as I stopped to get gas and drove away, I remembered how he has never forgotten me.

That's what the pastor had said. That even when we forget to remember him, Jesus never forgets us. He always remembers his own.

I remembered how Jesus has remembered me. Even before I knew him, he knew me and was with me, remembering me when I was young and lonely and afraid.

All the times I chose to do wrong, all the times I tried in vain to control the universe without him, all the times I turned to a lesser god for comfort and meaning that inevitably failed me, he remembered me.

This is what I wrote on Christmas Eve 2009:

"It's Christmas, and I'm trying hard to remember Jesus, to think about how he set aside his glory and entered the world as a helpless human, to remember his poverty, the lowliness he chose to endure — all because he remembered me.

"Because he remembered me, he suffered. He died. "Because he remembered me, he was buried. He rose.

"He remembered me from the beginning, remembered me all through my life, and even if I try to forget him, I can't."

Last Sunday, we had communion. We walked up to the front of the warehouse church, lights dimmed, music loud. We took the bread that was broken, as Jesus was broken, and dipped it into the substitutionary blood that was shed for us.

As we did, we remembered Jesus, remembered him because he first remembered us.

HARRISON COUNTY SHERIFF'S REPORT TRAFFIC CASES

May 23 -- At 8:36 a.m., a non-injury accident occurred on US 27 North.

Frankie Maynard was traveling north behind another vehicle when it stopped suddenly to turn into Northfield Oil. Maynard swerved to the shoulder to avoid hitting the vehicle and struck the oil company's gate.

May 23 -- At 1:55 p.m., a non-injury accident occurred on US 27 North near the city limits. Elisha Carr of Falmouth was traveling north on the highway when Cory Stamper of Walton turned too wide on the highway. Trying to avoid a collision, Carr veered into the right lane and the cars sideswiped each other.

May 24 -- At 3:15 p.m. an injury accident occurred on Gray's Run Pike five miles west of the city limits. Shelby Bruin was making a sharp turn when she was forced to swerve out of the way of an oncoming vehicle. She lost control in loose gravel, struck several trees and a wire fence.

May 26 -- At 7:18 a.m., two young men, Austin Wade, 21, and Kyle Martin, 20, were injured in a serious vehicle accident on US 62 W four miles outside of town. According to the report, Wade was traveling east when the Toyota truck they were driving veered off the road in a straight stretch of the highway. Evidence suggested the truck drove through grass for over 200 feet before it came back on the roadway and skidded several feet. It began to flip on the road way and on to a guard rail. Wade and Martin, a passenger in the truck, were ejected on to the roadway. The car continued to flip, then came to rest on its tires and drifted down an embankment.

Both men refused treatment from Brown ambulance service, but were subsequently transported to Harrison Memorial Hospital by a parent before a deputy arrived on the scene.

Martin was treated for severe road rash at HMH, then released. Wade was flown from HMH to UK Hospital. He was reportedly going in and out of consciousness.

Martin told officers that he recalled flipping in the car, then waking up on the ground beside the road. Wade does not recall the crash.

May 29 -- At 9:38 p.m., a non-injury accident occurred on US 27 N about eight miles from town. Gary Kite of Melbourne, KY. hit a deer.

CASE REPORTS

May 24 and 25 -- two domestic incidents involving Lois Kelly and Christopher Turner on Two Lick Road were reported over the course of 24 hours. In the first incident, Kelly was transported from the home to another address and advised by a deputy not to return. At 1:30 p.m. the next day, she returned to get personal belongings from the home. The argument escalated into property damage including: multiple picture frames thrown in the back yard; large rocks hurled at a car in the driveway shattering the front window; cake was also thrown on the car; a necklace was ripped from Turner's neck. It was difficult to determine who broke a front window of the house. A deputy again transported Kelly to another Harrison County address.

Two days later, on May 27 at 10:07 p.m., Deputy Tuan Kreer responded to a report from Lois Kelly of Two Lick Road that she had received a text message from Christopher Turner, also of Two Lick Road, that he had cut himself in an alleged suicide attempt. Along with Harrison County Fire and EMS, Dep. Kreer located Turner at the back door of his home.

He was standing with a hand behind his back. When Kreer got within four feet of the individual, Turner produced a knife with an open blade, prompting the deputy to reach for his firearm. Turner quickly threw the knife to the ground.

Turner was found to be intoxicated and had one small cut on his arm. He was taken into custody for menacing and falsely reporting an incident.

May 29 -- At 4:39 p.m., Regina Fogle of Nunnelley Road reported that someone had entered her garage and stole auto parts belonging to her.

CITATIONS

May 22 -- At 7:49 a.m., Paula Roland, 52, of Ky 3004, Berry, was cited on two charges: Failure to produce an insurance card and speeding over 20 miles per hour in a school zone. Roland was clocked at 55 miles an hour in a 35 zone on US 27 N during a time when Northside Elementary was admitting students.

May 22 -- At 7:29 a.m., Joshua Wolfe, 24, of Old Three L Hwy, Falmouth, was cited on a charge of speeding 21 miles over the speed limit in a school Thence with the leased to McDonald Corp. line: 1 North 50°22'09" West 260.20 ft. to the point of beginning, containing 0.92 acres and being a part of the property conveyed to Wal-Mart Real Estate Business Trust in Deed Book 230, Page 100. All bearings are based on Kentucky state plane coordinates, grid north. All measurements are based upon actual field survey made by CMW, Inc., and as depicted upon a map or plat of same of record in Plat Cabinet 4, Sheet 326, Harrison County Clerk's Office; and,

Being the same property conveyed to Forum Shops Cynthiana, LLC, by deed dated August 7, 2007, and of record in Deed Book 299, Page 378, in the Harrison County Court Clerk's Office.

The property is being sold to produce a sum sufficient to satisfy the judgments and liens as follows: (a) The costs of this action, including the Master Commissioner's fee, appraiser's fee and advertising costs; and (b) Judgment for the Plaintiff, Bank of the Bluegrass and Trust Co., in the amount of $1,755,063.66 plus interest at the rate of 6.500% per annum from March 12, 2014 until paid, plus any additional costs expended by Plaintiff to protect or preserve the property until sale date. (c) Real Estate taxes, plus interest and penalties, if any, for taxes assessed for the year 2013 and previous years. (d) Plaintiff's Court costs and attorney fees.

The property shall be sold upon the following terms and conditions: (1) The property shall be sold free and clear of all liens and claims of the parties to this action; (2) The purchaser shall be required to pay the sum of 10% of the purchase price in cash, certified funds or by other immediately verifiable collectable medium of exchange acceptable to the Commissioner, on the day of sale to apply on the purchase price; (3) The balance of the purchase price shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days after the day of sale; (4) The purchaser shall be required to execute a bond with good and sufficient surety thereon as approved by the Commissioner to secure the unpaid portion of the purchase price, the bond to bear interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the day of sale until paid, the bond to have the same force and effect as a judgment and shall remain a lien on the property as additional security until the purchase price is paid in full; (5) In the event that the Plaintiff is the successful purchaser, it shall be entitled to a credit on its judgment against the purchase price and shall only be obligated to pay court costs, the fees and costs of the Master Commissioner, and any real estate taxes payable pursuant to this order, and in that event, no bond shall be required; (6) The purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or any part of the purchase price or paying the bond before maturity by paying the balance of the principal together with all accrued interest thereon until the date of payment; (7) The purchaser shall obtain possession of the property upon confirmation of the sale by the Court and payment of the purchase price in full; (8) All ad valorem taxes on the property for calendar year 2014 and all subsequent years shall be assumed and paid by the purchaser. All real property taxes due and owing to Harrison County or the City of Cynthiana for 2013 and prior years will be paid from the proceeds of sale. (9) The property shall be sold subject to any assessment for public improvements levied against the property and subject to all rules and regulations enforced by the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning and Zoning Commission, all applicable health and safety regulations, all restrictions and easements thereon appearing of record in the Harrison County Court Clerk's Office, governmental laws and regulations affecting the property, and shall be subject to any unrecorded easements, discrepancies or conflicts in boundary lines, shortage in area and encroachments, if any there be, which an accurate and complete survey or an inspection of the property would disclose; (10) The purchaser shall bear the risk of loss on the improvements on the property and the risk of loss shall pass to the purchaser as of the day and time of sale; (11) The property shall be sold with any improvements thereon "as is"; and (12) The property shall be sold subject to such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America pursuant to 28 USC Section 2410, and the right of redemption of the Defendants.

All bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Plaque unveiling at museum this Friday, June 6

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

A special plaque honoring the officers and enlisted men who have served, and will serve, in the 149th Kentucky Army National Guard will be unveiled at the Harrison County Museum on South Walnut Street on Friday, June 6, at 2 p.m.

Cecil Logsdon, president of the 149th Association, recently sent a letter to friends and families of the association inviting them to the unveiling of the plaque.

In the letter, Logsdon explained that it was the wish of members Willie Williams and Harold Slade, veterans of the 149th, to have a plaque honoring those who served mounted at the local museum.

One of the things Slade did prior to his death was establish a display commemorating the 149th at the museum, Logsdon wrote. The plaque will make a finishing touch to the display.

Logsdon noted that the membership has been getting older and progressively smaller with each passing year and it has become apparent that the organization will likely no longer meet regularly.

But what remains of the treasury from dues paid from the association membership will be used to support the Honor Flights program, which provides senior veterans a means to visit their war memorials in Washington, D.C.

Preference for these trips is given to the dwindling numbers of World War II veterans.

Another program that the 149th's Association treasury will support is the Wounded Warriors, which provides aid to injured veterans and helps them return to a normal life at home.

"We came to the conclusion that they [the remaining treasury funds] should be spent to help the most veterans as possible," Logsdon wrote.

Many Harrison County men served in the 149th. In addition to himself, Slade recalled John Parker Bell, Jack Blackburn, Jesse Cook, Cecil Dance, Howard England, Woodrow Herrington, Marvin "Mop" Highlander, William J. Ritchie, Frank Snapp, Ray Tapp, Robert Whitehead, and Aubrey Wiggins.

The division was active in the Pacific theater of operations during World War II with bases in Hawaii, New Guinea, and Luzon of the Philippines, according to an account that Slade wrote for the Harrison County Museum display.

After basic training at different locations throughout the south, Slade wrote, members of the 149th boarded a troop transport in New Orleans on New Year's Eve, 1943, journeyed through the Panama Canal and went on to their first base of operations at Camp Heeia in Hawaii.

"After we were well out to sea, we were told that we were headed for Hawaii. That sounded pretty good to us," Slade wrote in a personal memoir.

Their time in Hawaii was short, he said. After receiving amphibious combat training, they moved on to New Guinea for a few months. But they didn't see combat until early December 1944 on Leyte Island in the Philippines.

In February 1945, the 149th, along with the 38th division, played a major role in retaking Bataan on Luzon Island.

"After the battle in 1945, the 38th Division was nicknamed 'The Avengers of Bataan,'" Slade wrote.

At the end of the war, the 149th was sent home from Manila Bay.

"I often think of the time they sent me south to become a part of the 149th infantry as my lucky time...I'm glad I had the opportunity to serve in these outfits and with the men that were in them," Slade concluded.
